Course: Philosophy and Theology of Community I (PHIL229101) Professor: Sweeney, Meghan Time: Tuesday 4:30-6:50

Description: This seminar explores the nature of community, with particular focus on community in the American context. Some of the central historical, cultural, political and religious forces that have shaped both American community and the American understanding of community are examined. These questions are initially approached from an historical perspective with an assessment of philosophical ideas which were dominant in the political thinking of the American founders. The seminar then considers the historical development of those ideas in light of the way they are concretized in political practice, arriving at an assessment of contemporary American thinking on community. Level: Undergrad Elective

Course: Society and Culture I (PHIL229501)

Professor: McMenamin, La 2aveid

Time: Tuesday 1:30-4:15

Description: This course will aim at an understanding of contemporary American society by exploring the underlying cultural traditions and practices from which that society arises. We will attempt to lay a foundation for understanding contemporary ways in which the American people choose to structure the way they live together. Our study centers on questions about how our culture and its social structures are the concrete expression of what we value, of the things we consider meaningful and important within American culture.

Course: Feminisms & Phil of Differ (PHIL400101) Professor: McGill, Cherie Time: MW 1:30-2:45 Description: What does it mean to call oneself (or someone else) a feminist?? In attempting an answer to this question, we will consider efforts to reveal, unravel, and remedy the conceptual, psychological, and economic dimensions of the oppression of women. We will discuss a variety of feminisms -liberal, existential, radical - and their differing approaches to such feminist issues as marriage and domestic violence, reproduction and pregnancy, work and sexual harassment, and the science of gender and gender difference. We will examine the relationship of sexism to racism, heterosexism, and class exploitation, and investigate the role of the concept of difference in creating and maintaining structural inequalities. Course: The Problem of Suffering (PHIL410001) Professor: Bloechl, Jeffrey

Time: TT 4:30-5:45

Description: This course will examine the experience of suffering and its resistance to interpretation. We will begin with a reading of the book of Job, in order to generate some guiding questions. We will move next to clinical experience of physical and mental suffering, and then explore the consequences for the sufferer's relation to self, world and others. The final portion of the course will examine philosophical and religious practices meant to give meaning to suffering.Professor Jeffrey Bloechl Level: Undergrad Elective Prereqs: none Coreqs: none

Course: Mode bsophy (PHIL44) Professor: Solere, Jean-Luc

Time: TT 1:30-2:45

Description: The course presents in a synthetic but not superficial manner the major philosophies, from Descartes to Kant, which have punctuated the emergence of the modern mind, the development of scientific knowledge and transformations of Western societies, during a period in which conquering rationality asserted its autonomy and gave rise to the idea of Enlightenment, but at the same time reflected on its own limits. This comprehensive survey will
