

Policy Concerning Human Embryonic Stem Cell Research and Funding

Boston College prohibits the use of its facilities and resources for research involving human embryonic stem cells or materials or products derived from such cells. In addition, the University does not accept any funding for human embryonic stem cell research.